

PAP TEST

FACT SHEET

for MATURE WOMEN

As a mature woman, do I still need a Pap test?

In Nova Scotia, it is recommended that all women have regular Pap tests up to age 75. Once you reach age 75, you can stop having Pap tests ONLY if you have an adequate negative screening history (that is, 3 or more negative (normal) tests since age 65). If you are uncertain, talk with your doctor about whether you need a Pap test.

Do I need a Pap test if I am menopausal?

Yes, if you are under 75 you still need a Pap test even though you have stopped having periods.

Do I still need a Pap test if I've had a hysterectomy?

The following guide reflects the current recommendations and practices for Pap screening of women who have had a hysterectomy:

- For women who have had a subtotal hysterectomy (cervix still present) Screening every two years
- For women who have had a total hysterectomy (cervix removed) and had treatment for cervical dysplasia or have a history of cancer of the cervix Annual/yearly screening
- For women who have had a total hysterectomy (cervix removed) and no treatment for cervical dysplasia or history of cancer of the cervix No Pap test required
- For women who have had a total hysterectomy and no Pap test history known Have three negative Pap tests, then stop.
